Description

Nestled in the charming community of Blandford, Nova Scotia, on the Aspotogan Peninsula, this restored heritage property offers a rare opportunity to own a piece of history with stunning views of the Atlantic Ocean. Built in 1867 and once serving as a Rectory for St. Barnabas Anglican Church, this large Cape Cod cottage has been lovingly restored and updated, seamlessly blending historic charm with today's quality building standards. Updates include, but are not limited to cedar exterior siding shingles, roof, windows, doors, flooring, bathroom fixtures, insulation. There's a shed to the back of the property that could be turned into a charming wine shack, with stunning ocean views. This home lends itself to many opportunities. Move in and enjoy the quaint village of Blandford or take advantage of the popular summer vacation spot and create a Bed and Breakfast, or rent this spacious house as a vacation rental.
