Description

Tucked into the coastline of Nova Scotia's Eastern Shore, just an hour's drive from Dartmouth, Peninsula Pasture Island, aka Seal Rock, is all but part of the 100 Wild Islands archipelago. Imagine sailing or paddling amongst islands left quite untouched by humans for 10,000 years, but home to an abundance of wildlife, including over 100 species of birds. When you're ready for a rest, pull ashore on your own private, ~1.5-acre island. Set up camp, or investigate the possibility of building an off-grid cabin. Don't miss this rare opportunity to own a piece of the Tangier coastline - a community whose Mi'kmaq name, Wospegeak, means "the sunshine is reflected from the water". Listed below assessed value.
